OUR MISSION

To implement an adaptive and research-based integrated prevention system to increase protective factors that reduce the prevalence of harmful behaviors to protect our Soldiers, Airmen, Civilians and their Families.

GOALS

- Prevent incidents of self-directed harm, sexual violence, family violence and workplace violence
- Apply a public health approach to prevention in the National Guard context
- Partner with existing NCNG prevention programs and enhance them
- Use “upstream thinking” to identify root causes of harmful and abusive behaviors
- Eliminate redundancies and duplicative efforts within the state’s prevention lines of effort
- Establish collaborative relationships with leaders, prevention stakeholders, prevention experts, military, and civilian community-based resources
- Capture, analyze, and use data related to harm or abuse to inform decisions, implement solutions, develop strategies and improve policies, programs and practices

The National Guard prevention system will:

- Center on addressing shared risk and protective factors
- Provide a more supportive environment for teams, units, and communities
- Acknowledge the impacts of an ever-changing environment
- Align authorities and responsibilities in a way that provides coherence
- Expand prevention activities across the whole of the continuum, with an emphasis toward “upstream,” primary prevention efforts
- Leverage data and research to ensure accountability, focus efforts, drive continuous improvement and innovation
- Broaden risk to include vulnerabilities as well as threats

OUR MISSION

To implement an adaptive and research-based integrated prevention system to increase protective factors that reduce the prevalence of harmful behaviors to protect our Soldiers, Airmen, Civilians and their Families.

GOALS

- Prevent incidents of self-directed harm, sexual violence, family violence and workplace violence
- Apply a public health approach to prevention in the National Guard context
- Partner with existing NCNG prevention programs and enhance them
- Use “upstream thinking” to identify root causes of harmful and abusive behaviors
- Eliminate redundancies and duplicative efforts within the state’s prevention lines of effort
- Establish collaborative relationships with leaders, prevention stakeholders, prevention experts, military, and civilian community-based resources
- Capture, analyze, and use data related to harm or abuse to inform decisions, implement solutions, develop strategies and improve policies, programs and practices

The National Guard prevention system will:

- Center on addressing shared risk and protective factors
- Provide a more supportive environment for teams, units, and communities
- Acknowledge the impacts of an ever-changing environment
- Align authorities and responsibilities in a way that provides coherence
- Expand prevention activities across the whole of the continuum, with an emphasis toward “upstream,” primary prevention efforts
- Leverage data and research to ensure accountability, focus efforts, drive continuous improvement and innovation
- Broaden risk to include vulnerabilities as well as threats

OUR MISSION

To implement an adaptive and research-based integrated prevention system to increase protective factors that reduce the prevalence of harmful behaviors to protect our Soldiers, Airmen, Civilians and their Families.

GOALS

- Prevent incidents of self-directed harm, sexual violence, family violence and workplace violence
- Apply a public health approach to prevention in the National Guard context
- Partner with existing NCNG prevention programs and enhance them
- Use “upstream thinking” to identify root causes of harmful and abusive behaviors
- Eliminate redundancies and duplicative efforts within the state’s prevention lines of effort
- Establish collaborative relationships with leaders, prevention stakeholders, prevention experts, military, and civilian community-based resources
- Capture, analyze, and use data related to harm or abuse to inform decisions, implement solutions, develop strategies and improve policies, programs and practices

The National Guard prevention system will:

- Center on addressing shared risk and protective factors
- Provide a more supportive environment for teams, units, and communities
- Acknowledge the impacts of an ever-changing environment
- Align authorities and responsibilities in a way that provides coherence
- Expand prevention activities across the whole of the continuum, with an emphasis toward “upstream,” primary prevention efforts
- Leverage data and research to ensure accountability, focus efforts, drive continuous improvement and innovation
- Broaden risk to include vulnerabilities as well as threats
